The answer can be found, in part, in Amy Zegart's incisive and revealing new book, Flawed By Design: The Evolution of the CIA, JCS and NSC. Though a case can be made that Clintons vacillation on ground troops had a lot to do with his own uncertainty about how to execute a war, Clinton also had to contend with institutional defects which have frustrated every U.S. president since Harry Truman.

FLAWED BY DESIGN: The Evolution of the CIA, JCS and NSC ...

Flawed by Design studies the organizational development of the principal agencies created by the National Security Act of 1947. Surveying more than a half-century of bureaucratic policies, Amy Zegart posits a new, institutionalist, "national security agency model," to explain a pattern of administrative creation and survival.

This design, however flawed to an outsider, has provided a valuable asset to Presidents who favor using the agency for various covert operations. In Flawed by Design, Amy Zegart convincingly articulates her message: the agencies Americans count on most for protection from international threats are, by design, largely incapable of doing so.

John Corrigan "Jonathan" Wells (born 1942) is an American author, theologian, and advocate of the pseudoscientific argument of intelligent design. Wells joined the Unification Church in 1974, and subsequently wrote that the teachings of church founder Sun Myung Moon, his own studies at the Unification Theological Seminary and his prayers convinced him to devote his life to "destroying Darwinism."

Jonathan Wells (intelligent design advocate) - Wikipedia

The at-home system, was, however, flawed in some ways, as large-scale production of items was not possible, with different outcomes for the same product. The latter half of the 18th century saw a shift in this mechanism, with the advent of steam and water power, which were used in the automation of processes applied in the factory system.
