The date of Dionysius' compilation of the Painter's Manual is probably of his second period on Mount Athos, that is, 1730-1734.

While he is known to have painted icons in several locations, his stature as an artist must always have been exceeded by his other gifts, and the interest of these works lies in their relationship to the literary works of their creator.

Novgorod School of Icon Painting. There is a very marked difference in approach between the Christian art of Dionysius, the third great Russian icon-painter of the Novgorod school, and that of his great predecessor Andrei Rublev (c.1360-1430). It should probably be ascribed to the interest which later 15th century Novgorodian
